Gaylor Teams with Chinese-American Trade Organization

Indianapolis, IN – January 25, 2011 - Gaylor, Inc. has joined the American China Society of Indiana as a charter member. The society launched its new trade organization this month with the goal of building a strong economic partnership with Indiana.

“We already work with many Chinese corporations,” said Mike Kern, vice president and manager of Gaylor’s Columbus, Indiana branch. Kern was part of the delegation that traveled to China on a trade mission last November. “This group will give us opportunities to network with Chinese business people forming relationships that encourage investment in the state, creating jobs and work for hundreds of Hoosiers.”

According to Kern, partnering with ACSI is a perfect fit for Gaylor and this bond will help Gaylor professionals, locally and nationwide, better serve current Chinese clients and foster future customers.

A statement by Albert Chen, ACSI Chairman, referred to Indiana’s agricultural products, advanced bio science in addition to auto and IT technology as attractive consumer goods that can be exported to China to fulfill growing market demands.

Gaylor, Inc is committed to the electrical industry's highest standards of professional integrity, performance, and cost effective services for the benefit of its clients. Since its inception in 1984, Gaylor, headquartered in Indianapolis, Indiana, has grown to become the most widely respected electrical contractor in the nation. Gaylor is governed by core values including safety, diversity, education, employees and relationships.
